

UI Students Create Large Pollinator Garden

Zoe Doerr, Stephen Lemeshko & JW Fay

Leaders in UI Student clubs

Presentation: Students led the design, development, and ongoing management of this native plant garden. Two student clubs engaged students and staff from across campus. With a rock garden, a small prairie, and educational signs, this is designed for bees, butterflies, and student learning. Public art displays were added this summer.

Presenters: Zoe Doerr and Stephen Lemeshko are current and former President of the University of Idaho Student Chapter of the Society for Conservation Biology. JW Fay is current President of Student Chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architecture.
